Folio: poster guide for Shaz

Final version, 15 Oct 2026. The app is frozen and the documents are final, so you can design against this without it moving. Team 11, DECO3500. Tradeshow: Week 12, Tue 20 or Thu 22 Oct (Dylan is confirming the day). Poster draft v1 by Thu 15 Oct (you are away Mon and Fri). Artefacts are due 3:00 pm Mon 26 Oct.

1. Read this first: what the tradeshow is

> The brief says the tradeshow is a demonstration, not a presentation. Visitors use the prototype themselves, with several people at once. So the poster's job is to explain the project in a glance and send people straight to the app. The QR code is the most important element on the poster. Make it big (at least 10 cm square) and put it where a visitor standing at the stand can scan it.

2. Folio in one breath

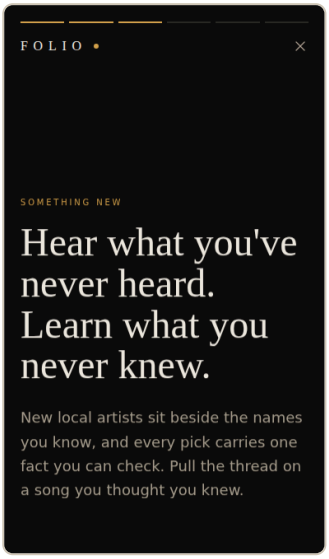

Tagline (same as the app): "Your city's front page, for music." One music Edition per city per day. A named local curator picks 8 to 12 tracks, says why each is there and links a source. At least two picks are new local artists. No likes, no ranking. It locks at the city's midnight. Brisbane is live; Seoul and Mumbai say "Coming soon". Roles: listener, artist, curator (applied for, approved by the team) and the Folio team.

3. How the app looks now (real screenshots)

Dark ink background, cream text, saffron accent, serif headings. The old MOTIF navy-cyan-magenta look is retired; do not use it. The app opens with a short story told one part at a time (tap or swipe), then lands on Today.

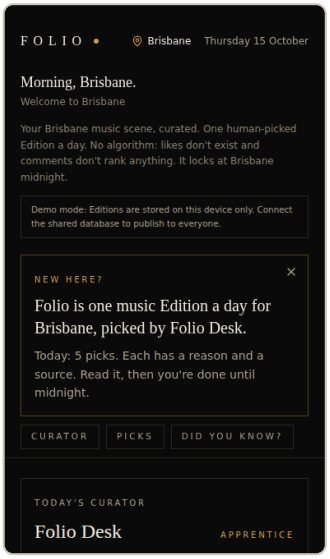

1. Opening story, part 1: "Your city's front page, for music."

2. Story part 3: new local artists next to known ones

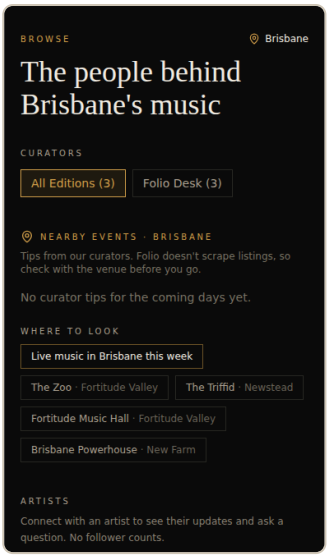

3. Brisbane part: a sourced fact and the Acknowledgement of Country

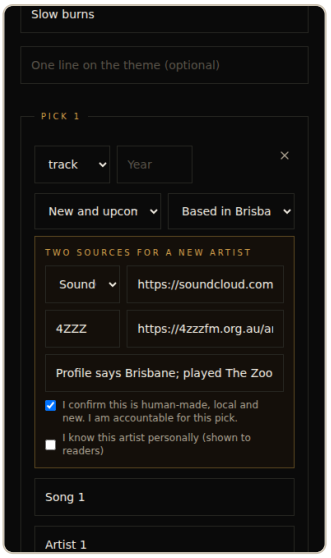

4. Today: the Edition, curator named

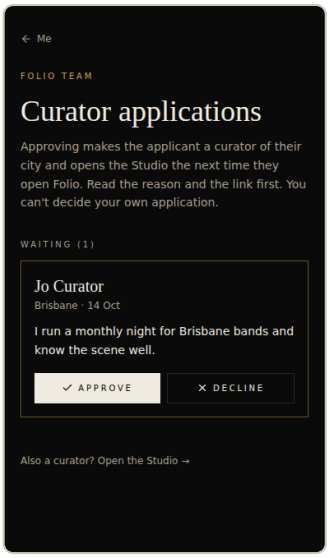

5. A Liner Note: one fact, one source

6. Browse: curators, Nearby, artists

7. Curator Studio: a new artist needs two sources and a signed check

8. Folio team approves curators

Try it with no password: https://s4899427.github.io/Team_11_Folio/#/demo (the sandbox opens every role on local data). The live app is the same address without #/demo; choose Join as a guest. Screenshots are in submission/09_Evidence/screenshots/. Please re-take any you want larger from the live site.

4. Poster format (from the brief)

- A2 portrait (420 x 594 mm), a close-read conference poster covering problem space, concept and process, pulling from our GitHub documentation. It must be self-contained.
- Assessed as: a creative, engaging pitch and poster that clearly explain the project (one of five equal criteria).
- Palette: Ink #0C0A09 Cream #F4EDE0 Saffron #D4A24E Burgundy #7C1F3A. Type: serif (Fraunces) headings, Inter body. Title 110 to 140 pt; section headings 54 to 64 pt; body 26 to 32 pt; captions 20 pt. Fewer words, bigger images; the point should land from 2 metres away.

Layout (three bands)

> Top (about 20%): title, tagline, one hero screenshot, big QR top right. Middle (about 55%): left column problem, idea and rules; centre three phone screenshots with captions; right column roles and social-and-mobile concepts. Bottom (about 25%): process timeline across the width, then findings, ethics, honest limits, team and credits.

5. Poster copy you can paste (all of it is true; edit freely)

> Problem. "Streaming apps give endless choice, ranked by what is already popular. Local artists get buried, and nobody is accountable for what you see. 'I just want it to be more human focused.' (interview participant R1-P6)"

> Idea. "Folio gives every city one music Edition a day. A named local curator picks 8 to 12 tracks, says why each is there and links a source. It locks at the city's midnight. No likes. No ranking."

> Five rules. One Edition per city per day. Every pick has a reason and a source. At least two picks are new local artists. No likes, no ranking. Curators are applied for, never self-chosen.

> Social and mobile (pick three). Awareness on purpose: you can see who curated, but there are no counts, because visibility has a privacy cost (3C model, awareness tensions). Place: the Edition belongs to a city (Design for Location: theme, nodes, trajectory). Accountability: the rules are political choices built into the software (Winner 1980; Akrich 1992).

> Process. MOTIF concept and six interviews → Week 9 tutor feedback to scope to one domain → music-first Folio for Brisbane → shared database and roles → evaluation in context with several people at once → ethics workshop.

> Findings box. Leave blank until Dylan sends evaluation results (about Sun 18 Oct). Do not write findings that do not exist yet.

> Ethics (three decisions). Location is optional and never stored. A fan's name is visible only to the artist they chose to connect with. Curators are applied for and approved, and every pick is sourced.

> Try it. "Scan, tap Join as a guest, read today's Edition."

> Credits. Team names and roles; "Claude was used for coding assistance, documents, evaluation design, tests and city-fact research; all decisions, interviews and evaluation were done by the team."

6. The honest-limits box (put this on the poster, bottom right)

> What Folio is not, and what we could not check. Folio cannot detect AI-made music: a named curator signs that each new-artist pick is human-made, local and new and gives two independent sources, but a > curator could sign falsely. "Local" and "new" are claims a person makes, not measurements; we use no stream counts. Some seed facts are being cross-checked. It is a proof of concept: no email recovery, moderation tooling, licensing or scale testing. Our evaluation is small, short and formative, in one city.

Markers reward this. State it plainly, in a small box, not in fine print.

7. Do and do not

- Do show the product doing things: screenshots with callouts beat paragraphs.
- Do include one trade-off we accepted (no like counts, so no social proof) and why.
- Do use participant codes (R1-P1 to R1-P6); never real names.
- Do not claim the app is validated, or write any evaluation result we do not have.
- Do not mention features that are not built (a gig verification queue, an AI link check, SoundCloud integration, stream counts).
- Do not use Aboriginal artwork or patterns, and do not make "Aboriginal-style" art. It needs permission and credit from an artist or community. A clear Acknowledgement of Country line is the safe choice, once an appropriate person has read the wording.
- Do not say the app plays or streams music. It is a list of picks with reasons and links.
